

Complete Repertory 2019

Work Done

2018 brought a novelty: work on the repertory not only by me but also by Dr. Rajesh Rajendran, also co-admin for the facebook group Complete Repertory, Clinical Cases and practicing homeopath in Chennai, India.

This has helped us to include more contemporary material than I alone could tackle in the past years, which is good news for many colleagues.

I took on to compare the original Kent rubrics and their page-appearances later in 2018 with those derived from it in the Complete Repertory. A work long overdue and a challenge for one's perseverance. Result: 10.000 page-references resurrected for rubrics in the Complete Repertory that lost their original Kent's page references in the course of time. Some rubrics from the original were restored, others repositioned. Sometimes some remedies were added. The result will enable us to produce a derived, updated and corrected Kent's Repertory as a sub-set of the Complete Repertory.

Some examples of work done in the comparison of CR and Kent's Repertory:

I think the simplest reason Kent took less emphasis on smaller remedies was: Time Restrain. He needed to come out with his full rep and avoid financial fiasco.

CR: Kent Repertory: Face; LOCKJAW : menses, during : Hyos. Clinically confirmed already from Bönninghausen's Repertorium der nicht-antipsorischen Arzneien. in next Complete Repertory third degree.

Earlier in 2018 Knerr's Repertory was checked for further additions and corrections for Mind, Sensorium (including Vertigo), the Respiratory tract (Nose to Lungs/Chest) and the Digestive tract (Mouth to Rectum). Idem for heart, Pulse and circulation. A work I started in 2012 but was never finished. I intent to continue this further in 2019 while making additions, always use some common sense. "Expectoration; hemming; reading alone" as suggested by Knerr, does not make much sense, no vibration. Original text: reading aloud. Aha.

interestingly Knerr's repertory contains quite some hints to information from Hartlaub & Trinks Repertory 1847. A work that is very good, but rarely quoted due to some spat Hahnemann had with Trinks, of which i do not know the details. All i can say: whatever spat, Trinks... See More

Some further corrections to the Complete Repertory and some cases/older proving-additions complete the work done for this year. It definitely was a lot of work. We end the year satisfied and wish every one a very fulfilling and happy New Year of 2019.
